been asked to write a paper using the APA format. It’s helpful to break down the paper into smaller sections and tackle each section in turn. Reading published papers that are similar to yours will likewise give you some insight into the correct layout.

The main principle here is that, all ideas and words of others should be properly and formally acknowledged. If you are uncertain about the writing conventions in your field, it’s best to consult your supervisor. But remember that when in doubt you can always consult your supervisor, who will have more experience in handling running heads and avoiding plagiarism.

Running Heads should not exceed 50 characters including punctuation and spacing. Your running head should not exceed one line. It should be in all capital letters and centered on the page. If it requires more than one line, please be reminded to double-space between all lines. The page number should appear one inch from the right corner of the paper on the first line of each page. The title page will serve as the Page 1 of your paper.

In general, your paper should follow these formatting guidelines:

Title Page

The author note is where information about the author’s departmental affiliation is stated, or author affiliation(s) if applicable. In case there’s no institutional affiliation, just indicate your city and state or your city and country instead. The abstract begins on a new page. It states the author(s) of the source, the material’s year of publication, the name or title of the source material, as well as its electronic retrieval information, if these were used formats in writing academic papers, particularly in the field of science.

The page number should appear one inch from the right corner of the paper on the first line of each page. The title page will serve as your Page 1. It should be typed centered on the page. The order of pages should follow this format:

Title Page > Abstract > Body > References > Appendices > Footnotes > Tables > Figures

The body of your research paper begins on a new page, Page 3. The whole text should be double-spaced for the whole document, including appendices, footnotes, tables and figures. The page number should appear one inch from the right corner of the paper on the first line of each page. The page number should appear one inch from the right corner of the paper on the first line of each page. The title page will serve as your Page 1. It should be typed centered on the page. The order of pages should follow this format:

Title Page > Abstract > Body > References > Appendices > Footnotes > Tables > Figures

Text Citations

In-text citations should contain the title of your paper, your name as its author (including co-authors, if any), and your institutional affiliation. They should be placed immediately after the part of your text that refers to a source material. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your research paper. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text.

Footnotes

Footnotes are occasionally used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text. They can also be used to back up substantial information in your text.