Productive self-talk is a powerful tool in combating self-sabotage and negativity. It involves shifting the focus from blaming others or circumstances to taking responsibility for one's actions and progress. Here are some examples:

1. "I am in control of my thoughts and actions."
2. "I have the power to change my outlook and circumstances."