and the symptoms of anxiety tend to wear off. When we regain our regular breathing pattern, the levels of carbon dioxide return to normal changes, cause experiences, such as sweatiness, lightheadedness and tingling in the limbs. When we regain our regular breathing pattern, the levels of carbon dioxide return to normal and the symptoms of anxiety tend to wear off.